5 SIGNS OF A SCAM

HOW TO BUY SAFELY

DON'T BUY LAND BLINDLY

Introduction

Many Nigerians (home and in the diaspora), have fallen victim to the countless, notorious scam tactics of fraudulent land sellers.

This guide will help safeguard your hardearned money against real estate scam artists.

Read carefully to the end, implement what's necessary and feel free to reach out to us if you need assistance.

5 Signs of a Scam

1. No verifiable documents:

They can't show a C of O, survey plan, or deed. When you ask, they delay a lot before responding to questions regarding the title on the property - which often times end up with a no show of the title document or title number.

2. Too-good-to-be-true pricing:

If it's far cheaper than others in that area, it's a trap. Conducting a market research survey in the area you are about to buy property in is a smart move to have an idea on the price range of that environment. Helping you make more informed decisions about purchasing that property.

5 Signs of a Scam

3. No physical office or brand:

If they can't be traced, neither can your money. In some cases, you might be working with an independent realtor. But make sure this realtor shows visible, verified signs of working with a traceable real estate company that owns the property they are marketing to you.

4. Rushed payments:

Scammers use urgency to make you skip due diligence. NEVER skip due diligence. Always investigate a property before buying.

5. No receipt or written agreement:

If it's not on paper, it's not real. If there is no provision of documented evidence of transaction between you and the property seller, it is a RED FLAG. Always ask for what documents you'll be given before making payment.

How to Buy Safely

- Always verify land documents before paying.
- Buy only from developers with proven track records and transparent processes.
- Visit the property physically. If you are not able to, request a LIVE virtual inspection or send a trusted representative.
- Ask questions. Take your time. Make sure you ask questions to receive answers that are in your best interest.

At Light Way Homes, every client receives verified documents and instant allocation upon full payment because peace of mind is the standard.
